No One Born Too Soon
Many Weak Links
Alcohol Kills Too Many
Can You Chew Wheat?

Bernard Shaw, in his new "talkie," tells the world he was born fifty years too soon. But if he could return, in fifty years, and learn what has happened to the sale of his books, he might be surprised.

No one is born too soon. One in thousands of millions is born to outlast his age and other ages, Shakespeare, Euripides, Dante, Homer, Michelangelo. But even they will pass and become as obsolete as the Cro-Magnon artists.

Shaw shows his seventy-five years in talking about himself too much, his beard, his forehead, his cleverness, Morletons managers should speak to him.

Mussolini, about to celebrate the eighth anniversary of his rise to absolute power in Italy, accuses the European nations of deliberately planning another war, and keeping one group of nations disarmed with that plan in view.

Most important, Mussolini, for the first time, officially sides with Germany, Hungary and other nations that demand revision of the Versailles treaties.

Strange news tells of a seven-year-old boy slaughtered in India, as part of a sacrifice, by devotees of Black Magic. The child's body, having served its purpose, was thrown down a well.

Such a gruesome incident is important since a chain is no stronger than its weakest link. If that applies to our civilization, there are frightfully weak links to be considered.

At least one thousand million of the human beings on earth know nothing and are cursed with frightful superstition.

Our government at present is congratulating itself on sinking 20,000 tons of United States submarines at the suggestion of England, which owns most of the commercial ships afloat and naturally doesn't like submarines.

We may wish before long that we had kept those undersea boats. It wouldn't have cost much, if anything, to keep them, and we may soon be rebuilding them.

Since 1920, and under prohibition, deaths from alcohol in the United States have increased 200 per cent, according to Dr. Hoffman, statistician of the Prudential Life Insurance Company.

It is particularly unpleasant to read that deaths from alcohol have increased among women especially. And it is surprising to read that in the United States, under prohibition, deaths caused by alcohol are more than 1,000 per cent more numerous than in a majority of the civilized countries. No civilized country has more than 15 per cent of our deaths from that cause.

What is the matter with us?

Chairman Legge, of the Farm Board, finds a sensible way of unloading some of the wheat that the Government bought to stabilize the price that wouldn't stay stabilized, and his unloading will help, not hurt farmers.

He will stabilize it by feeding it to the hungry. An excellent idea, and the wheat will be worth all that the Government paid for it, no matter what the price per bushel.

Roman soldiers carried raw wheat in a bag and chewed it as they marched. Their skulls show teeth in wonderful condition, much worn down.

Our citizens will hardly learn to chew raw wheat on the march, hunting for jobs.

The British Labor Government is wise in one thing. MacDonald refuses to counter any tariff on wheat.

To tax bread in a country unable to support more than half of its population would seem the limit of foolishness.

France manages to help farmers without increasing the price of bread. Every barrel of flour used in France must contain a certain percentage of French-grown wheat. The percentage is adjusted according to the size of the French crop. By this arrangement the French farmer gets for his wheat in cash more than double the price paid to the American or Canadian farmer. And the French people buy good bread much more cheaply than we buy it in America. Wise Frenchmen!

Britain announces that it will recognize the new British government, based on revolution and force.

Our course is uncertain. We sided with the old government, just as it was toppling over. Similarly, we lent millions to the Czar and Kerensky as they toppled, and we have refused to recognize Russia ever since.

However, the new Brazilian rulers say they will pay old debts, repudiating nothing. That may soften our hearts, always open to a cash agreement. We shall probably recognize the new Brazil, after sulking long enough to let wise Britain pick up friendship and trade.

State to Hear Road Allocation Claims

Lynchburg District Hearings Set For Tomorrow; Moses And Horsley To Go

Hearings on road project allocations and milage to be taken into the state highway system under the Porter Rhodes bill will be held for the Lynchburg construction district by the Virginia State highway commission Friday morning in Lynchburg.

No recommendations for the location of the milage in this county have been made by the board of supervisors, but two routes have been suggested. Don Moses will appear before the commission to ask that funds be used for the road from Bent Creek to Charlotte County which is now under construction. Route 10, which goes by Hebron Church to James River will be upheld by J. R. Horsley, of Stonewall. Appomattox County is allowed 12.74 miles.

The time for the hearing has been set from 9 o'clock to 12-30 o'clock. Amherst, Buckingham, Cannelli, Charlotte, Cumberland, Halifax, Nelson, Pittsylvania, and Prince Edward are included in the Lynchburg district with Appomattox. Dissenting groups are expected to be present from all counties to uphold their claims.

Freight Reductions Save Farmers $1,400

Freight reductions on hay and grain have saved Appomattox farmers $1400 according to R. B. Hudgins, county agent. The extension of these rates through December 1 will mean further savings.

Up to this time Mr. Hudgins has issued only eighteen permits for shipments under the reduced rates, and only twenty carloads have been shipped in. Mr. Hudgins in accounting for his said most of the farmers have enough roughage to carry them through until February and neither the farmers nor the dealers are able to stock up on feed before it is necessary.

Railway Program Gives Many Work

Richmond, Va., Nov. 6.—A. C. Needles, of Roanoke, president of the Norfolk and Western Railroad, in an article carried this month in the Manufacturing Record, discusses a $13,400,000 improvement program inaugurated by his road, which is providing work for thousands of men in many sections. President Needles says:

"Coincident with the general business depression and the subsequent unemployment which have existed throughout the country for several months, there has been a slowing up of industry and trade in the territory served by the Norfolk and Western Railway. This is reflected in the decreased volume of traffic handled by the railway in the first nine months of the year. In spite of this situation, the Norfolk and Western believes that the recent and steady growth of its territory has been based on sound principles, and has therefore an enabling faith in the future.

"Among major projects in improvements and additions authorized by the railroad during the year are:

"Construction of additions to its Lambert Point port facilities at Norfolk, $900,000; construction of a new blacksmith shop at Roanoke, $225,000, and the construction of a branch line in West Virginia, $1,254,000. Other projects authorized prior to 1930 and now under construction include a new eight-story addition to its general office building at Roanoke, estimated at cost $700,000; new offices and station and elimination of grade crossing at Portsmouth, Ohio, $1,605,000; elimination of grade crossing, relocation of tracks and improvements at Columbus, Ohio, $4,150,000, and construction of three new lines in Virginia and West Virginia, $13,000,000.

Meet Mr Jiggs

Famous Mascot to take part in Armistice Celebration at Roanoke.

Marine Eleven to Play on Roanoke Gridiron Tuesday

Meet Mr. Jiggs! He is the mascot of the U. S. Marines, and probably one of the most famous mascots in America. Jiggs, attired in his gridiron regalia, will accompany the All-Marine football eleven to Roanoke, Va., on November 11, when the colorful service team will play the Citadel "Bull Dogs". His hardboiled appearance belies his mild and gentle nature. Jiggs was presented to the Leathernecks by Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion and he has won fame by traveling around the country with Marine atheletic teams.

Thousands of tickets for the game, the main feature of a huge Armistice Day celebration at Roanoke, have been purchased by football fans in Virginia and adjoining states, according to those in charge of arrangements. The Marine band will be accompanied by 300 of the "Devil Dogs" and a twenty-five piece Marine band. In addition to the game the program for the day calls for military parades by the Leathernecks and the Citadel Cadets, who will be joined by National Guard units, members of various state American Legion posts, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Spanish War veterans, Confederate veterans and their auxiliary organizations, and Gold Star Mothers.

WILLIAM and MARY PLANS HOMECOMING PROGRAM

Homecoming Day will be celebrated at William and Mary College, Saturday, Nov. 8, George W. Guy, executive secretary of the college has announced.

A football game with Roanoke College, a tree planting, to be in the George Wythe House, Bruton Parrish Church, and the Sir Christopher Wren Building, a concert and a dinner are scheduled on the program of entertainment for visitors. The game with Roanoke will be held at 8 o'clock in the evening.

SUPERVISORS CALL MEETING

A call meeting of the Board of Supervisors was held this morning at the courthouse to discuss the adviseability of putting prisoners in the county jail to working the road.

Disposing of Manure

In disposing of the farm manure during the coming months don't neglect the farm garden. Apply manure at the rate of from one-half to one ton per one hundred square feet of garden space, depending upon the condition of the land and the amount of manure available. If the manure is coarse, it should be applied previous to plowing. If it is well rotted it may be applied to advantage after lowing. No fertilizer can take the place of manure as a soil conditioner. Apply it liberally to the farm garden, the most valuable acre on your farm.

The Woman's Auxilary of the Presbyterian Church will meet at the home of Mrs. Mary McKenney Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 12th, at three o'clock.

V. P. S. Co. Contract Offers Reduction

Town Council Defers Signing; Objects to Time Period and New Clause

A contract from the Virginia Public Service Corporation offering a rate reduction which would save the town $192 a year was submitted at the monthly meeting of the town council held last Monday evening in the manager's office.

The contract was discussed that evening but action was deferred until the evening Tuesday, Nov. 11, when the Virginia Public Service Company superintendent has been asked to convene with the Council.

Council members objected to signing for the five year period which the contract called for. A clause inserted this year for the first time placing the extra expense incurred in wiring street lights over 300 feet apart on the town was also objectionable for the delay in accepting the new terms.

The town treasurer, P. W. Coleman was instructed to notify all delinquent taxpayers that taxes not paid on or before Nov. 15 will result in action to collect by law. The outstanding claims for the town amount to about $250.

J. A. Burke Issues School Reports

The annual fiscal report for Appomattox County Schools as presented by Jerry A. Burke, superintendent of schools, shows an expenditure of $75,520.04 during the past year. Of this amount, $40,800.74 came from county funds, $29,719.76 from donations, miscellaneous sources, and $31,999.54 from the state.

In addition to the financial report, published by Mr. Burke on page 2 of this issue, he has also prepared a statistical record of the operation of his county school system. According to this report, there were 1615 white children enrolled in county schools last session and 678 negro children, making a total enrollment of 2293.

The average daily attendance for white pupils last year was 1,268, and for negro pupils, 476. In other words, there were 346 white pupils and 203 negro pupils absent from school every day, Mr. Burke says. A large percentage of these absences, he adds, were legal so far as the operation of the compulsory attendance law was concerned, as many of them were pupils over the age limit. Postcard notices sent in, the number of absentees could be greatly reduced by the full co-operation of the parents.

A total of 346 pupils, who started out last year dropped out before the year was over. 1157 white children were promoted, 252 failed, and 206 dropped out. 386 negro pupils were promoted, 145 failed, and 140 dropped out. Unfortunately, Mr. Burke says, many pupils stop as soon as they reach 15 years of age, which is the maximum age of compulsory attendance.

There are twenty-two school buildings for white children in the county and seventeen for negroes. There are fifty-four teachers in the white schools, and twenty-one in the negro schools.

The larger schools of the county are badly in need of more room and more teachers, Mr. Burke says. "All of the schools are in need of more equipment and instruction supplies. In making progress a board can go only so fast as long these lines, the school the people will allow.

Intensive Red Cross Roll Call Planned For County

Friday, Nov. 13, a mass meeting for the Red Cross will be held in the courthouse with Miss Eula Mae Burke, chairman of the county chapter in charge. Mrs. Florence Harvey Linder, special field representative will be present at the meeting to explain the basic principles of the organization.

The drive opens next Tuesday and every plan is being made this year for an intensive campaign for members according to Miss Burke. Practically the entire county will be covered with a house to house canvass.

Prominent citizens and civic groups in the county are pledging their aid and support in this year's drive. Members of the Town Council have unanimously pledged their support, and urge all who are possibly able to join the Red Cross this year.

J. C. Davidson, cashier of the Bank of Appomattox, in endorsing the Red Cross says:

I have observed the work being done by the Red Cross in this county for the past several years, and feel that much more could have been accomplished had the people of the county taken a greater interest in its activities.

I feel that the coming year will see many cases even in our county that will require help from someone, and it seems to me that the Aed Cross is the best equipped organization to handle this kind of work.

I hope in the membership campaign soon to be inaugurated that our people generally will join this organization.'

Every one, whether a member or not of the Red Cross is urged to attend the mass meeting.

Glass and Tucker Win Large Majorities

Light Vote Cast Here; Democrats Lose Representative In Only One District

Despite the unusually light vote here last Tuesday due to the rain and the lack of a heated contest, Harry St. Clair Tucker, Democratic candidate for the House, and Carter Glass, candidate for the Senate, received a large majority over their opponents.

Congressman Tucker was returned to office by a large majority throughout the tenth district. There was no county in this district from which the Democrats failed to receive a substantial majority. A large majority was also piled for Carter Glass, whose opponent were left trailing far behind throughout the state.

Out of approximately 2000 qualified voters in Appomattox County, the total vote cast was 527.

Other candidates elected to the House throughout the state were: first district, Schuyler Otis Bland, D; Second District, Menalcus Lankford, R; third district, Andrew J. Montague, D; fourth district, Patrick H. Drewry, D; fifth district, Thomas G. Burch, D; sixth district, Thomas A. Woodrum, D; seventh district, John W. Fishburne, D; eight district, Howard Smith, D; and ninth district, John W. Flannagan.

Tobacco Market Has Good Opening

Lynchburg's dark leaf tobacco market opened yesterday with a break approximating 30,000 pounds, the offings selling from donations comparing favorably with those received on last year's opening considering the quality of leaf offered. The average was about $10.55 a hundred weight.

Although the prices were very good considering the quality of leaf offered predictions of some tobacconists were that the prices would increase somewhat through the season.

A great deal of tobacco offered was light in order, which was due to the continued rain that lasted most of the night, and the condition of the leaf perhaps had considerable to do with the prices.

This rainy season will enable the planters to strip and grade more leaf, so that reasonably heavy breaks may be expected for the next ten days. With the exception of one season last week, the extremely dry weather has worked a hard on the tobacco.

One of the outstanding characteristics of the dark tobacco crop this year is the short leaf. A large percentage appears to have been stunted by the drought. This limits the use to which the leaf can be placed in the factories, as well as decreasing very much the weight.

Then too, much tobacco is thin and while the texture and color is very good, it cannot be compared with last season's growings. These factors combine to make for moderate prices.

The short leaf which was only medium in color, and body sold well up in the $10 class, the scale ranging from $4 to $8 on less desirable or 'sorry' foots. Whenever a lot was found that had much length, usually the leaf was very thin, although the color was very good.

A large number of piles were knocked out from $12 to $15 on fairly weight, and several lots went as high as $30. One pile of exceptionally good sold for $40.

Lady Fingers

A New Leaf

He came to my desk with quivering lip—
The lesson was done.
"Dear Teacher I want a new leaf," he said,
"I have spoiled this one."
I took the old leaf, stained and blotted,
And gave him a new one all unspotted,
And into his sad eyes smiled,
"Do better, now, my child."

I went to the throne with a quivering soul—
The old year was done.
"Dear Father, hast Thou a new leaf for me?
"I have spoiled this one"
He took the old leaf, stained and blotted,
And gave me a new one all unspotted,
And into my sad heart smiled,
"Do better, now, my child."

Household Helps

In cooking a tough fowl or meat, one tablespoon of vinegar in the water will serve nearly two hours boiling.

To remove iron rust, soak the stain thoroughly with lemon juice, sprinkle with salt and bleach for several hours in the sun.

To remove tar from wash goods, put soft grease on the spot, rub it thoroughly with the hands, and wash both grease and tar with warm soft water.

A pinch of soda added to a quart of milk before putting it on to boil, will prevent curdling.

Thought for the Week

"Lift Up Your Eyes"

"Behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation." These words, uttered two thousand years ago by one of the history's greatest thinkers, come ringing down the centuries to cheer the hearts of men to this day. And another still greater thinker lived before his time, said "Set not ye. There are yet four months, and then cometh harvest? Behold, I say unto you lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest."

Every one is waiting for good times before doing the things that everyone wants to do. What fools, indeed, these mortals be; for they thereby ignore the palable fact that all there is to hard times is just this waiting for good times, and that good times cannot come until confidence returns and the waiting ceases.

The Hi-Y club will hold its regular night meeting Wednesday night, Nov. 5, at 8 o'clock. The following questions will be discussed:

"When is a fellow a hypocrit?"

Is any fellow perfect?

Why should a fellow, who is not perfect try to make others better?

Who then is the hypocrit?

How can a fellow make progress toward perfection?

BURSTING HEADACHES? Bring Quick Relief

Mrs. Cora Mosbier, of 601 North New Orleans Ave., Brinkley, Ark., writes: "I was so constipated until I was just sick. I could not stand to take strong medicine, so I decided I would take Black-Draught, and I found it to be all right.

"I would have such dizzy spells, and such bursting headaches, until I could hardly go. But after taking a few doses of Black-Draught, I would feel just fine. It is a good medicine, and I recommend it to all who suffer as I did. It is very easy to take, recommend a medicine that has done as much for me as Black-Draught has done."

Bertram Russell has to a fine degree the faculty for tickling the American palate. He writes provocatively, if not always convincingly, about the "serious, deep" things in which we all like to think we are interested. Having taken his turn at most of the social institutions, he begins on the individual in "The Conquest of Happiness." The book is based on the fallacy that most people are extremely unhappy, but this one fault doesn't interfere in the least with one's enjoyment of it, for it is written in a clear, vivacious style and is most entertaining.

"Miss Mole", by E. H. Young is a story of a woman who was well supplied with intelligence, education and humor, but unfortunately, rather lacking in money and relatives. Consequently, she must attempt to make a living by acting as housekeeper to various people who have more money and position than she, but considerably less intelligence and humor. Her part of intellectual dialogue, which occasionally slipped so that she lost that job and tried another, is the theme of the story. It's a rather unusual book, but undeniably good.

Louise Bromfield, in his facile style, has done a seemingly impossible thing. He has taken a very sensational plot, very sensational characters, and a good many of them, and made them into a good novel. "Twenty-Four Hours" is the picture of New York which many of us outside get from the movies and newspapers. It is not up to Mr. Bromfield's us
